accounts.

It has been brought out in previous testimony that the officers of the bank, acting in their individual capacities as agents for patrons of the bank, negotiated purchases and sales of stock through a brokerage firm, and that the commissions or profits accruing to the bank's officers in these transactions were entered on the commissions account.

It is with a view of explaining this voluntary contribution of the officers' profits to an account of the bank itself that the examiner's report and other re-that the examiner's report and other reports will be used.

Attorney J. J. Darlington, for the defense, moved, at teh opening of the hearing today, that the court break its precedent of adjourning over Saturday and Sunday and sit on Saturdays during the hearing of the case. He declared that it was only fair to the jury that court use every means at its command to have the trial concluded in as little time as possible. He argued that many of the jurors had business and some probably personal interests which would be seri-(Continued on Fourth Page.)

Deny Retreat Plan.

The war office early today gave out a brief statement denying the truth of re-ports that the French, at one stage of from the forts northeast of Verdun and defending the citadel from the west defending the citadel from the west bank of the Meuse. The report said this move had been contemplated through fear that the Germans would break the French front west of the Meuse and threaten the envelopment of the forces on the east bank.

"At no time during the battle of Verdun has the chief command given orders for the retreat of the French forces on the right bank of the Meuse," it was stated.

"On the contrary, on February 23, two days after the battle opened, General Langle de Cary ordered the troops on the right bank that every point, every small position, should be held at all costs, and that the only word would be hold on."

"Hold At All Cost.' ' "On the evening of the 24th, the com-mayder-in-chief Jasued Instructions to hold the front between the Meuse and Woeve with every means at your com-

It was amended specifically to provide that the term "government em-ployes" shall include employes of the municipal government in the Nation-A further amendment stipulates that the bill shall apply only to employes who have been in the service of the Government not less than two years and who shall have attained the age of twenty years. This amendment was written in the bill to meet the case of the so-called "transient employe," who might work for the Government only a few months, and then go to other fields. The labor committee adopted the re- gineer Commissioner; employes shall receive an automatic increase of 5 per cent per year for four successive years. As reported, the bill will provide merely for a minimum compensation of 33 per day, but this legislation will affect more than 25 per cent of the Government employes in the National Capital. Formal report of the bill will be made later to the House by Chairman Lewis, of the Committee on Labor. Advocates of the measure hope that it may be considered at this session, although it is realized that business in both houses of Congress is in a consested state.

In order that the bill shall be construed to apply to charwomen, who are employed at nominal sums, in the various departments, the bill was amended to prove that "if employed by the hour, not less than 37½ cents per hour" shall be paid.
